APRIL 6, 2025 + 5TH SUNDAY OF LENT

Change is hard. And necessary. In the reading from Isaiah, God puts it beautifully and bluntly, saying: "...see, I am doing something new! Do you not perceive it?" To illustrate, rivers will run through wastelands and deserts will become places of life. In the letter to the Philippians, Paul forgets what lies behind him, "straining forward to what lies ahead" toward his new life in Christ. And the divine newness at work in the Gospel speaks for itself. Not only is the woman, accused of adultery, called by Jesus into a new way of life; the elders themselves are challenged to move beyond their violent judgments, which they had taken to be their prerogative. In our faith, then, we are called to perceive the new and enter fully into it.

On a natural level, we can recognize this need for newness, for novelty and breaths of fresh air. New things—restaurants, music, relationships—are exciting. Ads and commercials try to convince us that their products are the answer. If we all can recognize this, why is it so hard to entrust ourselves to the newness of God?

Maybe it's because we humans are prone to divided hearts and contradictory desires. So, while we want what is new, we may just as often want what is familiar, too. Familiar things comfort us and are dependable, and in a world full of stress and unpredictability, it's natural that we turn to reliable comforts, like ordering a deep-dish pizza after a long, stressful day at work. But how do we discern between what is lifegiving and what is stagnating?

God Bless, Fr Leo
