AUGUST 31, 2025 + 22ND SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

A Call to Humility and Wisdom. The book of Sirach reminds us that humility is the path to honor and favor. This wisdom book often teaches how to live a righteous life in daily actions. The Church uses this reading to show that true greatness comes from recognizing our limits and relying on God. The verses also echo Sirach's larger theme of seeking wisdom through reverence for God. Giving alms as atonement reflects the book's practical view of faith, where good deeds and mercy are signs of right living. It calls us to live simply and treat others with kindness.

Our responsorial psalm celebrates God as protector of the weak and restorer of His people. This psalm views wider message of God's power and justice. God is shown as a mighty king who defeats enemies and blesses His chosen ones. Caring for widows and orphans reveals His justice and mercy working together.

Jesus gives us His teaching on humility in today's Gospel. Taking the lowest seat and inviting those who cannot repay reflect God's upside-down kingdom where the humble are raised high. Luke's Gospel reflects God's mercy and inclusiveness. Jesus calls His followers to treat others with generosity, expecting nothing in return. It points to God's reward in the resurrection, showing that true honor comes from serving others with love.

God Bless,
Fr. Leo
